1.

Take the opportunity to travel

It costs money, but it’s well worth it.

4.

Learn how to make friends and keep in touch with them

Relationships are hard to form and maintain.

9.

Take care of your body

Be careful what you put into it.

11.

Learn how to cook a few dishes

We all can’t be a self-taught culinary master, but at least be able to serve 2 or 3 dishes for each meal type.

12.

Keep a physical or digital journal

As a goldfish, I tend to write down everything.

13.

Budget your funds

Learn to live on less and save more.

15.

Write your own 30 under 30 and genuinely pursue it

My 30 under 30 is pretty well structured.

22.

Curiosity is key

In research or general understanding of the pieces around you; be sure to ask questions and keep digging.

25.

Challenge yourself to do hard things

Doing hard things is hard.

28.

For financial freedom, think about the $30,000 and not the $30

The big decisions are the ones around educational debt, housing, transportation, career base pay, and location.
